Correction to Conflict of Interest Statement in: POINT: Should Radiation Dose From CT Scans Be a Factor in Patient Care? Yes.

The author has reported to CHEST that there was an oversight in not addressing potential conflict of interest in “POINT: Should Radiation Dose From CT Scans Be a Factor in Patient Care? Yes.” (Chest. 2015;147(4):872-874.) Although the author did not receive any compensation for any of his academic work on his publications, he served as a consultant for attorneys in litigation and testified a year after the publications were released. (Donovan v. Philip Morris (PM) Civil Action No. 06-12234-DJC).

Correction to Conflict of Interest Statement in: Rebuttal From Dr McCunney.

The author has reported to CHEST that there was an oversight in not addressing potential conflict of interest in “Rebuttal From Dr McCunney.” (Chest. 2015;147(4):877-878.) Although the author did not receive any compensation for any of his academic work on his publications, he served as a consultant for attorneys in litigation and testified a year after the publications were released. (Donovan v. Philip Morris (PM) Civil Action No. 06-12234-DJC).

Correction to Conflict of Interest Statement in: Radiation Risks in Lung Cancer Screening Programs: A Comparison With Nuclear Industry Workers and Atomic Bomb Survivors.

The author Dr McCunney has reported to CHEST that there was an oversight in not addressing potential conflict of interest in Radiation Risks in Lung Cancer Screening Programs: A Comparison With Nuclear Industry Workers and Atomic Bomb Survivors.” (Chest. 2014;145(3):618-624.) Although the author did not receive any compensation for any of his academic work on his publications, he served as a consultant for attorneys in litigation and testified a year after the publications were released. (Donovan v. Philip Morris (PM) Civil Action No. 06-12234-DJC).